 Michael: "I could say the same." Shu: "No one enjoys this (prison)"
 Me: "I do; making the most of it, at peace." Shu: "No way things are going the way you want them to." Me: "My measure of peace is not because things go the way I want them to. Rarely do. No treatment exists. Can't get up from ground normally. Use Grouse maneuver. Hard to climb stairs, wore helmet as child in case pushed over (can't halt fall, step fast/strong enough as others can). Pushed over as teen, with friendly push, got knocked unconscious. In prison, such a push could be fatal. Tried suicide attempt^{2x} to get to safer housing. Was stronger when first arrived in prison.

John: on outside, Sam was very active, able to hike, chop wood, didn't complain. Harder to get muscles back if atrophy.

Takes ~2x exercise as others to grow muscles. (3) Daily 2/19/25

"How do I talk to someone who could kill me by just pushing me?"

Half way through the song, he got lost on the note range and was singing ~5 notes low. I paused to get him up to the right pitch (on first note) "higher, higher." He could tell when he finally got there, his face lighting up. With that calibration step, he did fine. Not only that, he quickly caught the interpretive meter we have on verse three, acappella; was ready to go even before the end of the hour. His progress in one hour was greater than any transformation I've witnessed. ^A Trying to add in Christian Fairbanks playing guitar wasn't so well received, with them not recognizing/appreciating his talent. [That came in later. :)]
