T Tr.-Har. Debate

[First impressions. I was impressed at how Kamala took the initiative, arriving on stage, to approach Tr. for a handshake. I was disappointed in Tr.'s ^{initial} reluctance, but was glad he immediately warmed to reciprocate the gesture. ¶ Then, in the first ~3 mins, as the moderators set forth the rules, and Kamala answered the first question, Tr. looked super tired, like he was about to fall asleep while standing in front of ^(67?) millions of people. His eyelids were drooping. To me, it was nearly as disastrous as Biden's spacey look in the previous debate. ¶ Overall, I found Tr. to be cold, distant, uncompassionate, angry, demeaning — unlike his better self that is warm, affable, genuine, caring, up-beat. He could have won a lot of people over ^{— to at least some extent —} with the latter, including Kamala; whereas the way he actually was in the debate was off-putting and is a big reason he "lost" the debate in so many people's assessment. He's capable of so much more/better.]

- Tr. "I haven't read Project 2025; don't want to read it." [Boo! P25 is excellent, done by allies, deserves careful consideration, revision, implementation, as a team effort. Dogmatic rejection for political reasons is politics she does for the tablets, but I found her pep session very uninspiring. She basically said it's okay to be satisfied with small improvement. These inmates are capable of so much more. I think some leaders set the bar too low.]

at its worse. Tr. can be very arrogant. This is hor^{(3) Daily}rible. Project 2025 is comprised of stalwart MAGA patriots. He's shunning them because the Establishment ^{shuns} ~~shuns~~ them goes against what he stands for. Why doesn't he see that if the establishment opposes it so vigorously - like they oppose him, then it must be good?

- Tr: "She's a Marxist; Father ^{is} a Marxist" [True. Media dismissed]
- Miur asked Tr. to clarify ^{respond to} the allegation that he skuttled a bi-partisan ^{Senate} bill to remedy the border. [This was an important opportunity that Tr. sidestepped to address an earlier issue.]
- Tr: "I had nothing to do with J6." [Blatant disregard of an opportunity to bring clarity, not denial.]
- Har: "Tr. told Proud Boys, 'stand back & stand by'." [He did, and that was code to them. Still, most of the J6 madness was spurred by Antifa, BLM, FBI plant agents provocateur.]
- Har: "Tr. was fired by 81 mil. people" ['people' in quotes, millions of these popular votes were bogus ballots. She knows that. Was a major part of that insurrection.]
- Tr.: "A little secret: Biden hates Har." [Probably ~true, but a low blow, playing dirty; undignified.]
- Commentary: Tr. looked angry, rattled; Har. looked in command, Presidential [I ^{sort} ~~sort~~ of agree, though I think Kamala was being condescending; Fake repulsion to some Tr. statements she knows to be true, e.g. 'Father a Marxist'.]
- JD: "Kamala talks to Am.s like they're children." [She has, in the past, but not tonight.]
- NTD Taylor Swift endorses Har., signed ^{childless} "cat lady," with gorgeous amazing photo of her holding a fluffy cat.
