What progress have you made with your Short-Term and Long-Term goals?

I've been pleased to see how well the Captain Your Story course aligns with my initial SOLID goal of creating a class to "Find & Embrace Your Life Calling." Long-term-goal-wise, I've been sending letters to national leaders about how to amp up the repentance of society that is key to turning things around to where we've been headed as a society. Mike Johnson seems to have been bolstered as a result.

How have you been a positive impact within your community?

Setting good example of model citizenship. Encouraging fellow inmates to Find & Fulfill their unique calling/passion in life. Commenting with wisdom & integrity. Carry my weight helping with logistical tasks (cleaning, ice, hot water). Giving genuine compliments to foster/acknowledge improvement. Participating all-in, synced up, including with Chapel activities. Treating all people with respect. Giving people a smile/nod even if they don't reciprocate.

How will you continue to grow ^{as} into a consistent and contributing member of your community?

More of same. [I'd word this presently-redundant question, "How will you improve your role as a contributing member of your community?"] I'm quite satisfied with how I'm doing within SOLID. My focus is on affecting international affairs for good. IndComing.org I'm pleased to see the growth I'm witnessing here, especially among those accepting leadership opportunities.

How are you going to evolve your skills and use them either once you are released or here within different parts of this community?

I'm paying close attention to world events, studying scripture code, and writing to key people to help me in my role in helping bring the kingdom of heaven to earth speedily through a sufficient core of society turning back to God and goodness, including embracing their unique roles in the body of Christ, whereby we'll avert the rock bottom collapse to which we've been headed.
